Class Hatred Is An Assault Upon Democracy, Says Speaker

The cry of the age is to "save democracy," said Dr. Marvin Nathan yesterday afternoon as he addressed the members of the graduating class of the Bristol high school. "We seem to be fearful for the existence of our own democracy," he said, "Some of us appear to think that democracy might have been able to continue of its own accord, but not now."

Dr. Nathan was the speaker at the baccalaureate services held in the high school auditorium. Dr. Nathan is a prominent Jewish educator of Philadelphia, being engaged in social work and in teaching. He spoke as the representative of the Congregation of Avath Achim. Seated upon the platform with him were I. Wolson, president of the congregation, and Rabbi Manuel Kahn of the congregation.

Members ask the co-operation of their customers in this practice again this year. They feel that their clerks and help deserve this half holiday weekly during the hot summer months. Hundreds of other towns have found the same practice of closing every Wednesday afternoon highly successful.

ITALIANS ORGANIZE TO OPPOSE UN-AMERICANISM

Hear Interesting Address By Dr. Charles Sohl, of Abington Township

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

The movement started last week by Italian-Americans of this borough took a foothold yesterday afternoon as the organization met in St. Ann's clubhouse and elected officers. The Italian-Americans here are enlisting 100 percent in the cause of America and have organized to combat all subversive activities against the United States Government.

Officers elected were as follows: President, Anthony Russo; vice-president, Dr. Joseph Passeri; recording secretary, S. Joseph Aita; financial secretary, Thomas Juno; treasurer, Andrew Accardi.

The speaker at yesterday's meeting was Dr. Charles Sohl, chairman of the State American Legion, Committee of the American Legion. Dr. Sohl is also supervising principal of the Abington Township public schools.

Dr. Sohl spoke of the horrors of war and also of war refugees. He described his experiences in the last war when he was in Flanders and caught in the German push and for ten days he was with two sandwiches on which to live.

"The pictures we see and the stories we read in the newspapers about refugees do not tell one-half of the stories as the most horrible parts are omitted," said Dr. Sohl.

The speaker then went on to tell of the work of Fifth Columnists; how the work of this group helped Germany get into Norway which was 1300 miles away, which is just one-half the distance that it would take to get to America.

"Don't let us think that these things can't happen here, because they can and they are not too far away from us. It would only take three or four of these spies to paralyze this industrial town of Bristol."

"Spies either produce for their country or lose their lives. In doing their work, they don't care whose home they destroy, whose lives, or whatever they destroy. Don't wait until the situation is too far gone that drastic action must be taken. Prevent espionage now."

Miss Dorothy Louise Bingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bingham, 6117 Torresdale avenue, Wissinoming, was wed on Saturday afternoon to Mr. Donald F. Berry, son of Mrs. Laura Berry, Coatesville. The bride formerly resided in Bristol.

Attending her sister as bridesmaid was Miss Helen Bingham, Wissinoming; while Mr. Norman Berry, Coatesville, was best man for his brother.

The gown chosen by the bride for the wedding was of white silk net, with long sleeves and long full skirt. Her veil was attached to a crown-shaped head-dress of mother of pearl, and slippers were of white doe-skin. Her shower bouquet was composed of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Helen Bingham, the bridesmaid, wore a gown fashioned like that of the bride, but in blue silk net. Her head-dress was of pink flowers to which was attached a pink shoulder veil. She wore white doe-skin slippers, and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Party guests were entertained at a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Allies Retreat Along The Maginot Line

Berlin, June 3.—A retreat by Allied forces along the Maginot Line near Forbach was reported today in the official communique of the German high command, which asserted that 330,000 French and British troops have been taken prisoner in the Battle of Flanders, thus far.

The statement said: "The attack on Dunkerque from the west, south and east is making slow progress. Flooded grounds in great stretches is handicapping our operations."

Paris Bombed By Germans

Paris, June 3.—German bombers raided Paris today, dropping scores of missiles that set at least one-half-dozen fires on the outskirts of the city.

The air raid alarm sounded at 8:20 a. m. and within five minutes the skies were filled with the roar of planes. Already the skies were cloudy, and the haze hid the attackers from view. With anti-aircraft guns sounding in all directions, from the ring of impenetrable surrounding the capital, the heavy thud of bombs continued without interruption for 20 minutes.

At that time the attack tapered off to occasional explosions but already one-half-dozen columns of smoke could be seen billowing toward the city on the outskirts of the city.

French fighter planes immediately went aloft. Watchers in the streets agreed that the attacking squadrons totaled a "great number."

The first blast of the warning siren sent thousands of Parisians to cover, while the streets were filled with racing ambulances and first-aid trucks.

LANGHORNE, June 3.—Police authorities of Bucks County, Penna. Motor Police, as well as the police of adjoining States are continuing their search today for a colored man who brutally attacked a 15-year-old girl, a middle-aged woman, and a man, 82, while they were in their respective residences early yesterday morning. Six colored men, of the many suspects questioned, early today were being held at Bristol police headquarters to await further questioning.

Broadcasts have gone out over police teletypes, telephone messages as well as telegrams have been sent out in all possible directions. Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo and the Penna. Motor Police from the Oxford Valley barracks have thrown a detail of officers into the search. Every available suspect is being questioned and their whereabouts at the time of the attacks are being checked.

Just which attack was made first has not as yet been established.

Miss Jean Russell, 15, of the "Ridgewood House," 220 South Bellevue avenue, across the street from the Wood School for Exceptional Children, here, was attacked at about 4:30 yesterday morning. She was asleep in her room on the third floor when she was awakened by an intruder, whom she recognized as a colored man.

Miss Russell screamed and the man made a lunge for her. The two battled and the girl continued to scream and call for help, and before her assailant had succeeded in clamping his hand over her mouth, her screams were heard by others, including seven girls and three governesses in the house.

One of the governesses, Mrs. Gabriel Reilly, ran to Miss Russell's room, and there found the girl and a colored man wrestling on the floor. Mrs. Reilly went to the rescue of Miss Russell and the colored man, leaping at Mrs. Reilly, battered her about the face, bruising her lips, eyes and cheeks. Then the man, apparently frightened by the commotion that he had created, and hearing others rushing up the stairways, climbed from a window, let himself down onto a small projection, leaped to the ground and escaped.

Miss Russell and Mrs. Reilly, found lying in pools of blood on the floor, were given medical attention, and police called.

A meagre description given states that the man was between 30 and 40 years of age, "fairly dark," wore a leather jacket and a cap. He had gained an entrance to the house through a cellar door. In warning Mrs. Reilly not to attack him when she went to aid Miss Russell, the man cautioned her: "I know you, and if you say a word I'll kill both of you." As he

ON WITH THE CAMPAIGN!

The suggestion, coming from New Dealers, that the war crisis abroad requires in one form or another the perpetuation of present national leadership proceeds on a misconception.

In fact, it proceeds on two of them, the first being a presumption that a group including such persons as Ma Perkins and Harry Hopkins must possess a unique and irreplaceable genius for government. There is nothing in the record to support that presumption.

A second and greater misconception is that the Administration's attainments, whatever they amount to, will have a lot to do with the rearmament program. In truth, they can have only a limited part in it, and, for the most part, the less the better.

The Government at Washington, from the President down to the last brother-in-law's nephew hired as office boy, is composed of civilians. It has only a civilian's knowledge of the science of warfare. The actual work of increasing the nation's defenses must be left to the Army and Navy, with such expert industrial advice as may be essential to the problem of procurement. As to this work, the present, or any, government's proper place is on the sidelines.

It might be different if the country already were engaged in the supreme effort of war. In that case, there is little doubt that the present President would be by law a virtual military dictator, with power in himself and his assistants to bend the nation's whole economic life to the one end of serving the Army and Navy.

However, the nation is at peace and has every intention, if possible, of remaining so. No peacetime armament program endows the President with decree powers, nor are such powers needed, even for such a program as that now begun. Far from involving a total national economic effort, it will—or should—proceed as nearly as may be in the normal course.

Thus the war crisis abroad and consequent need for preparedness make it, if anything, the more necessary that the present Government's stewardship be submitted, as normally, to the people's judgment. Especially should popular judgment be brought to bear on the questions: What task is the nation's new military machine to be prepared for and how pay for it? Both are questions of solemn import. Both deal with matters of foreign policy and finance, on which the Administration's record as it stands by no means warrants implicit confidence.

The leadership to be perpetuated as to such questions is the people's leadership and none other.

While an Italian makes a cloth of milk, an American chemist is producing ice cream from cotton. Plainly, science is on its way, and it will be interesting to see where.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Sept. 26, 1878. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Last Saturday afternoon, James Mickle, an old gentleman about 80 years of age, who resides near Eddington, attempted to cross the railroad track at the depot in front of the approaching Belvidere train, going South, and was struck by the locomotive and injured so badly that he died before he reached his home, where he was immediately taken on the cars. He was well known in Kensington, Philadelphia, where he was born in 1795, and was the father of Lieutenant Mickle, of the 11th police precinct, in that city.

Bone gatherers to the number of nearly a dozen have been visiting the town during the past week and say that it is a good place for their business.

At a stated meeting of Hopkins Lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 87, held last evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing six months: N. G., Edward W. Falkner; V. G., John Booz; assistant warden, B. C. Foster; representative to Grand Lodge, William Kinsey.

The Mount Holly Fair which begins October 8th, will be continued one day longer than at first proposed and, on Friday, the 11th of October, arrangements have been made for a grand tournament to take place as well as other exhibitions of horsemanship, such as racing, running, and trotting under saddle. All the departments are receiving unusual attention and the fair will probably be even more attractive than heretofore.

One hundred and eighty-six carloads of Lehigh coal passed through Bristol last week.

Jesse L. Stackhouse, Esq., of Emille, has arrived home from his tour in Europe, and looks well and hearty, as if he would not mind trying the same kind of a trip again.

There must be a considerable building going on in Bristol, judging from the amount of lime received. Fifteen teen hogsheads containing 275 bushels came up from Philadelphia on the Twi- light last week.

Asher Conn, Sr., the old colored man who peddles cakes and pies through our streets, has made his daily trips between Burlington and Bristol for over 30 years.

Some of our citizens are troubled with chimney swallows. On Monday evening at least 150 of the little pests were seen to enter one chimney.

Young Girl, Governess and Aged Man Attacked in Their Homes in Langhorne by Negro

epoke it is stated that his voice was rather "thick."

The aged man attacked is Daniel M. Schumo, 82, Station and Gilliam avenues. Mr. Schumo resides with his daughter, Mrs. Irene Seipt. Mr. Schumo occupies a room on the second floor and sleeps alone in a room which adjoins a bathroom, on the other side of which is his daughter's room. Twelve others were asleep in the house at the time the attack is supposed to have taken place.

The attack on Mr. Schumo was not discovered until about two hours after the attack upon Miss Russell.

Mrs. Seipt was summoned to the "Ridgewood House" at about 5:30 to aid Miss Russell and Mrs. Reilly. Just as she was leaving her home, which is but a block away, she heard her father go into the bath room, but thought nothing of it. An hour later she and the police were called from the "Ridgewood House" and informed of the condition of Mr. Schumo.

Mr. Schumo at about 6:30 summoned a maid, Mrs. Beatrice Winkler, by ringing a bell in his room. The maid found him, bleeding, with his face terribly swollen and both wrists swollen and black and blue from being twisted and beaten.

Mr. Schumo in a feeble way was able to relate what had occurred. He told his family that he awakened and saw a dark form moving about the room going from his pockets. A chain, watch, knife and some money are missing. Seeing the man, Schumo arose and gave battle, despite his age. He and the colored man locked in grips and Schumo was battered about the face and his wrists twisted and beaten against the bed posts. Then it is believed that Schumo lost consciousness and fell back on the bed where he was covered with blood. After some time he regained consciousness and not realizing fully just what had happened to him, was of the opinion that he had been dreaming. He then rang the bell which summoned the maid.

Schumo was terribly beaten and shows the effects of it. Both of the women were terribly beaten and police say that all three were struck about the face and hands in much the same manner, thus connecting the two attacks.

Entrance was gained to the Seipt residence through a front door which was unlocked.

Miss Russell is a student at the Woods School for Exceptional Children where nearly 200 students from various sections of the United States are registered. These students are housed in various dormitories on the campus located in the center of Langhorne on Bellevue avenue. The main buildings occupying what is referred to as the Reifsnider Estate.

Mr. Schumo today was reported as being in a serious condition as the result of the vicious attack to which he had been subjected. He has a concussion of the brain and his heart condition was reported as being serious. He is receiving medical attention and care at the home of his daughter here.

The police in describing the man wanted for the attack reported that they are of the opinion that he shows some effects of the pummeling he received both from Miss Russell and Mrs. Reilly. "He might have swollen hands and knuckles and it is more than likely that his faces will show various marks and scratches. Both Miss Russell and Mrs. Reilly and Mr. Schumo, despite his age, put up vigorous resistance and fought back at their assailant.

Mrs. Molly Woods Hare, principal of the school and Mrs. Irene Seipt, assistant principal, were involved in the affair. They lost no time, however, in calling in the police and physicians. Dr. William L. Noe was summoned to treat Miss Russell and Mrs. Reilly while Dr. Henry Lovett took care of Mr. Schumo.

Entrance to the dormitory must have been obtained in the most stealthy manner. Entrance to the house was first made through a door leading to the basement and then the intruder. It is presumed, must have crept noiselessly up the stairway leading to the top where he entered the room of Miss Russell. Seven other girls and three governesses were in the same house but none of them heard any unusual noises. The man must also have had some knowledge of the premises as he let himself out of a small half-moon window, dropped to a projection on the outside of the house and then to the ground. The house sits a short distance back from the street and is surrounded by a hedge and shrubbery, although it is in plain view of Bellevue avenue.

Penna. Motor Police were swift to swing into action and Corporal R. D. Evans, in charge of the Oxford Valley barracks, ordered all officers on duty to join the search. Patrol cars took up their patrols of all roads in the vicinity at once and every inch of the territory was searched.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

The historic House of the Seven Gables, at Salem, Mass., has been reproduced in minute detail for Universal's "The House of the Seven Gables," which comes to the Grand Theatre today.

Before production started on this, the first screen dramatization of Nathaniel Hawthorne's famous romance of New England in 1828, Jack Otterson, the studio's art director, journeyed to Salem and inspected the old structure, making photographs and drawings.

RITZ THEATRE

To develop completely the human, every-day warmth and power of the most widely discussed novel of modern literature was the primary concern of all those connected with "The Grapes of Wrath," presented at the Ritz Theatre today.

As soon as Associate Producer Nunnally Johnson had completed his screen play of the Steinbeck story, all the resources of the studios were put at the disposal of Academy Award Winner John Ford, who directed the picture.

BRISTOL THEATRE

The highest praises are due the Bristol Theatre's current offering, "Dark Command," which opened last evening.

The story deals with the troubled days of the Civil War, wracked with war and internal troubles, such as the repeated raids of Cantrell and his guerrillas. The citizens of those days felt they were facing civilization's blackest hour—and yet less than a hundred years later the Civil War holocaust seems but an annoying interlude in the orderly progress of the years.
